Company Overview
Blue Flint Ethanol is a 65 million gallon per year biorefinery that has been grinding corn and producing ethanol, distillers’ grains, corn oil and E85 near Underwood, ND since February 2007. Blue Flint Ethanol was the first co-located directly integrated biorefinery in the nation. Blue Flint is a combined heat and power design, utilizing steam from Great River Energy’s Coal Creek Station for process and drying energy. Since coming online, the plant has evolved into a biorefinery with its production of corn oil and E85. Blue Flint’s proven successful operating approaches will be replicated at the new Dakota Spirit AgEnergy biorefinery near Spiritwood, ND.
