The Club

The Oyster Harbors Club was established in 1926 on Grand Island in Osterville, Massachusetts. The golf course was designed by famed architect Donald Ross. Unlike many Donald Ross courses throughout the United States, Oyster Harbors is one of a few places Mr. Ross spent significant time. Mr. Ross lived at Oyster Harbors and was a member of the Club.

A full course restoration took place, beginning in 2010 under the direction of Architect Tom Doak. This included restoration of all bunkers, expansion of greens, addition of tees and fairway expansion. The club continues to work with Mr. Doak in the continual process of restoring the golf course.
